I hired Jane to do the translation and coordinate the filing of patents in China earlier this year. First, her translation fee was more than competitive with other quotes I received.

It was a much longer than normal patent document and very technical. She did not hesitate on tackling the task and did so quickly. I had asked her to let me know if any clarification or explanation was needed which she did faithfully, but much less than I would have thought. This I attribute to her overall knowledge base and intellect.

Her communication skills are the absolute best. She kept me updated on the progress all along. The patent attorney fees were very reasonable and the filing and post filing tasks were completed early.

Jane is pleasant to work with and provides excellent advice on the processes and how to avoid problems.

At the time I was filing patents in 85 countries. I was dealing with a phalanx of translators and patent attorneys.

Comparing Jane to the others is easy.

On a scale of 1 to 10 she is a 12.

What ever your patent involves she will handle it with the care and attention to detail you need.

As an inventor with some years of experience, another issue for inventors is trust.

We depend on professionals like Jane to accurately translate and baby our inventions to the patent offices to protect our intellectual property rights. Perhaps as important as coming up with the invention in the first place, her job is to make sure that effort was not in vain.
